Please note: This information is for your direct peer-to-peer engagement. Everyone who shared their participation did so with the understanding that no one would identify others publicly. Some participating schools chose not to provide contact information at this time, but they may choose to do so later.

Your institution is not permitted to disclose the participation of another institution in the Education Value Survey. If referencing your own participation and performance publicly you may compare your campus to the national benchmark survey – but not to your peers in the institution-level survey. Below is the section of the Education Value Survey Master Services Agreement, signed by all of the participating institutions, which sets forth what Strada can do with publication of the results. We ask that this language guide you as you think about how to promote your own results and participation in this work.

Strada may provide blinded and aggregated results from multiple institutions to other stakeholders in the field and the public, as pertinent, in order to benchmark results and provide overarching insights. Strada will not publish a Project school’s individual results to other Project school participants or publicly without such school’s express written consent. Strada anticipates publication of combined Project school results in an anonymized, aggregated format.
